

An ordinary Sunday...

Today again one of those lovely Sundays where things just unfold peacefully and naturally...

The day starts with a wonderful breakfast and when the weather is nice the kids sit outside with their special Sunday breakfast: backed bread (roti) with some warm vegetables on it and a cup of hot milk....a real treat!!

Then there is time for all kind of odd jobs....the bigger students wash their clothes, kids are playing cricket, football or whatever they can find to play with. Just a very joyful big family where everyone is simply doing their thing in great harmony.

GS, one of our teachers occasionally pulls one of the kids teeth and Maree miss searches for fleas..... There are clothes to repair and sometimes there is some gardening to do.

We often go for a walk or collect some firewood...the evenings are still quite cold so we still make our lovely little fires at the end of the day. And then coming back from a long walk...it is lovely to eat a piece of watermelon!

Such are our Sundays....in all its ordinariness...Things are beautiful and deepfelt in all its simplicity!

Then we have something exciting coming up!!

Coming Friday the 3rd we will go on a school outing! We have reserved 5 big jeeps and will visit several beautiful places. One of them is Tashiding...a holy place on top of a ridge with several beautiful old monasteries and amazing views....we will visit a nice place with hot springs next to the river and have a picnic....Time to enjoy, to sing and dance and have some nice food and snacks...the kids are excited already...and so am I!!

Love and smiles from all of us!!
